ABOUT CLEARSIGHT

You have selected a Laser Vision Correction surgeon who has chosen to perform your laser vision correction at the ClearSight Laser Center. The center uses the latest in technology, including the Autonomous LADARVision 4000 flying spot laser.

The LADARVision is unlike any other laser on the Jersey Shore. The LADARVision is a pure small flying spot laser (with a beam less than one millimeter in diameter) to contour the cornea. The beam moves rapidly across the cornea surface under computer-controlled patterns of tiny overlapping spots. This changes the shape of the surface of the eye to correct, astigmatism, far-sightedness and near-sightedness and promote an exceptionally smooth surface. It also allows the more flexibility than other area lasers to reduce unwanted night symptoms of haloes and glare.

The LADARVision developed the first, and still has the best, eye tracker to follow unconscious eye movement during treatment. The LADARVision's FDA approved tracker is unique in that it utilizes an infrared laser that samples your eye position at 4,000 a second. This is faster than human saccadic eye motion. The company's expertise in eye tracking had its origins in many years of research and development for the Strategic Defense Initiative and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). You can take comfort that not only will your surgeon carefully monitor your progress on a computer screen, but also that you have the most sophisticated tracker available.

Many other unique technologic features are available at the center. This includes the best-controlled laser suite environment in the entire state. A factor recognized for more predictable results.
